liedseate, he was succeeded by his nephew.

In 1350, the Lordship of Laddeseate, was taken into the hands of the Duke of Lancaster, who appointed Sir William Douglas as his steward of the manor. This was done in order to prevent the English from acquiring control of Scotland, as the Lordship of Laddeseate was near the border of England.

In 1355, the King of England, Edward II, invaded Scotland and captured the Prince of Wales, who was held in the castle at Edinburgh. This event was followed by the signing of the Treaty of Berwick, which brought about a unity between England and Scotland.

In 1358, the Lordship of Laddeseate was returned to the Duke of Lancaster, who appointed Sir William Douglas as his steward of the manor once again.

In 1361, the King of England, Edward III, invaded Scotland again, but was defeated at the Battle of Halidon Hill. This brought about a peace treaty between England and Scotland, which lasted until 1369.

In 1369, the Lordship of Laddeseate was returned to the Duke of Lancaster, who appointed Sir William Douglas as his steward of the manor once again.

In 1371, the King of England, Edward III, invaded Scotland again, but was defeated at the Battle of Otterburn. This brought about a peace treaty between England and Scotland, which lasted until 1376.

The school is a place where children are taught to read, write, and to develop their minds. They are given a foundation in the basics of arithmetic and science. The school is also a place where children learn to work together and to respect one another. The school is a place where children are encouraged to be creative and to think for themselves. The school is a place where children are given the tools they need to succeed in life.
FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE WHITNEY MUSEUM OF ART

TO THE OCCASION OF THE OPENING OF THE MUSEUM IN 1957: A PREHISTORY OF THE WHITNEY MUSEUM OF ART

The Whitney Museum of American Art was founded in 1930 by Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, a patron and art collector. The museum was established to showcase American art and to provide a platform for emerging artists. It was one of the first museums in the United States to focus exclusively on American art.

The museum's collection includes works by many of the most important artists of the 20th century, including Jackson Pollock, Willem de Kooning, and Georgia O'Keeffe. The museum's permanent collection is housed in a building designed by architect Marcel Breuer, which opened in 1957.

Throughout its history, the Whitney has been a leader in the exhibition of contemporary art and has played a significant role in shaping the art world. It has also been a driving force in the development of new art forms and has been at the forefront of movements such as Abstract Expressionism and Minimalism.

The Whitney Museum of American Art continues to be a leading institution in the field of American art, and its collection remains one of the most important in the world.

A NOTE FROM YOUR EDITOR

The glum and a kind word helps us all. Please send some jokes to help overcome.

Inspite of the glum and doom of the recession life goes on and a cheerful experience with us all and send a description.

I wonder how many members were able to attend the dedication of the standing stones at Glen Tomas on 1st February? If anyone was there please share your experience with us.
