to go on Crusade to Jerusalem, but when he was not able to carry it to battle against the Turks, King Robert had made a ball of castles out of his house. The castle, however, was taken by the Turks and carried off to Alexandria.

Douglas's original castle was destroyed by the English in the battle of Bannockburn. In 1306, King John Baliol surrendered to the English and was taken to England. His son, Sir William Douglas, was captured by the English and held for ransom. He escaped and returned to Scotland, where he continued to fight against the English.

Sir William Douglas is remembered as the founder of the Douglas family. His family was one of the most powerful in Scotland and is still a prominent family today. The Douglas family is known for their involvement in politics and military affairs, and their influence can still be seen today.

On information received from Mr. I. Douglas, Stirling, Perth, Scotland, we may our history in Australia. Mr. Arthur I. Douglas, M.L.A. P.S.A. Scott, I. Scott,

A NEW STEP FOR THE CLAN DOUGLAS
Eliza's death certificate showed her mother as Douglas; so I then considered worth my while to find out that Eliza was a 'Kilkie', and not a 'Douglas'. So it was possible that Kilkie was only a name. The marriage was arranged almost simultaneously with her family. In Scotland, when Eliza was only 16 I have since found out the name of the second Francois Douglas who had been married on the 7th February 1922 to Eliza, which confirmed that her parents were Alexander Hilt and Eliza Francois. On her baptism certificate, her father's name shown as Alexander Francois.

Second Eliza Francois, by looking through copies of the parish's record, the names of my great grandmother, her mother, and my great grandmother, Florence Mary Francois. Her mother's death certificate was the second Francois. Thus all took place somewhere near Glasgow in 1922. The second Francois, Margaret William, born New York, my great grandmother, Florence Mary Francois, married William Douglas of Broughty Castle and had three more children. My mother - a Reverend Alexander Black and had three more children. She later married Mr. Gourudson, had died. In order to feed her family, Eliza earned two living. By playing the organ in a Presbyterian Church, she later married Mr. Gourudson, had two little girls and three more children. She said the Gourudson Douglas family stayed close, Eliza Francois being a member of the Gourudson Douglas family. This is why the name of the second Francois is important.

Henry William died of pneumonia 1942. He was the son of Eliza Francois. He was a retired clerk. His name is a mystery. I am a retired clerk. He was a very wealthy man. I was the only child of my parents. I was born in 1950. I have since found out that Eliza Francois was a member of the Douglas family.
Florence, her mother Elizabeth Douglas lived at the Nairn House, and they had four children: Elizabeth, Andrew, John, and William. After her father's death, she married William Black, a lawyer, and together they had four children: Andrew, Elizabeth, John, and James. Elizabeth was the oldest and most successful of the family. She was a member of the Edinburgh University Women's Union and a founder of the Scottish Women's Educational Society. She was also a contributor to the Edinburgh Journal of Science and a member of the Edinburgh Philosophical Society. Elizabeth was a strong advocate for women's rights and education, and she used her influence to support the establishment of the University of Edinburgh Women's College in 1878.

The image contains a page from a document discussing the rise of clan societies in Scotland. The text is partially visible, and the full content is not clear due to the image quality. The text appears to be discussing the formation and recognition of clan societies, possibly in the context of Scottish heritage or history. The page number is 10, and it seems to be part of a larger discussion on the topic of clan societies in Scotland.
